R&B/SOUL/INSPIRATIONAL SINGER

Born in Indianapolis, Indiana, Naptown-native singer/songwriter "Andriea Denise" Lee pens emotion-evoking, neo-soul/gospel purpose-filled music. Denise is a powerhouse with a sultry voice. Possessing a style heavily influenced by gospel music, Andriea deliberately crafts songs that serve to empower, to enlighten, to inspire, and to encourage others to live their best lives on purpose. Though not your traditional inspirational music, Andriea Denise's message is biblically sound. July 27, 2020 marks the release of her new single "Show Em". The song is said to be a strong follow up to positive songs "Thick Girls" and "To Live" released on the Soul Fusion duo ISH's 2015 album Pineapple Tuesday.

AUTHOR

Andriea Denise's literary works focus mainly on personal and spiritual development. She was born and raised in a strict, religious family. As a young person, life was rough, because she struggled to understand how spirituality and God worked. With a limited understanding which, at times was also skewed, her confusion transformed into anger, and she spent many years rebelling against the Christian faith and her family. She rejected the religion and stopped attending church. She wound up feeling even more lost and empty, confused.

Then, the funniest thing happened; while running from the church, Andriea ran smack into God. She found God, the truth, and herself. Though she had before struggled with self-image and negative thinking, she began to understand things a lot more clearly, and started to move forward in purpose, living intentionally. Andriea embraced the faith, once again, and grew emotionally, mentally, and spiritually.

After gaining a solid understanding of God's will for her life, she rejoined the body of Christ and started started serving others, teaching them how to rid themselves of negative mindsets, to shed misinformation, and to start living for real.
